

BRUSH IN HAND

I was a peasant
scrubbing the floors,
and you, Royalty
passing by,
dropping a smile
in my puddle.

My lowered eyes
saw your reflection
meet mine, and
for a moment,
we were equal,
we were alone,
and you smiled.

(2/1/87)

Robyn M. Davis

© All Rights Reserved